Career guidance seeks to prepare students

One of the basic purposes of the school system is to assist students to be prepared upon graduation from high school to enter the world of work or to continue formal education beyond high school. This goal is enhanced through a career guidance program which includes five broad areas: self-understanding, career information, educational information, work preparation and job entry and/or further educational skills.

Self-Understanding

In the area of self-understanding or self-awareness, students are aided in developing a positive and realistic self-concept through individual and group guidance and counseling activities. Counselors encourage students to bring to the counseling offices any personal concerns and questions for which private conferences are scheduled. The focus of the individual session is on problem-solving as it relates to the individual's need to realistically understand himself in matters concerning social adjustments, emotional maturity and physical development.

Group counseling in the area of self-understanding is carried out through guidance groups, classroom instruction, and the testing program. Group counseling adds another dimension to a persons self-understanding because information about ones self comes from interaction with other people.

An important part of the career guidance program at the middle school level (grades 7 and 8) is the homebase group guidance activities program. This consists of eighteen twenty-five minute group guidance discussion sessions which focus on teaching acceptable skills in conflict management and good interpersonal relationships. The counselor, using suggestions of teachers and students, plans and coordinates these activities which are actually carried out in a homebase period under the direction of the homebase teacher.

Career Information

Another phase of the career guidance program is designed to make students aware of career options through individual group counseling and classroom instruction. Students explore their career preferences by using various educational and career publications. In career groups, the counselor arranges for field trips and resource persons. Career information is taught through career units developed jointly by teachers and counselors. Careers centers in the guidance departments and school libraries serve students in further data gathering relative to career choices.

Educational Information

The career guidance program aids students in understanding the school curriculum as far as course offerings and graduation requirements are concerned. Assisting students in developing tentative long range plans for high school based upon an understanding of career planning and decision making is an important part of the program. Educational information is presented to students and parents in orientation and registration assemblies. Students, with the assistance of parents, and in cooperation with counselors, develop five year programs of study which are used for reference in individual career conferences. In the planning of five-year programs, students choose betwen a college preparatory, a vocational, or plan a combination of the two programs. The five-year program plan is very flexible and is reviewed and up-dated each year.

Work Preparation

The work preparation phase of career guidance includes course selection and skill development to enter a particular occupation. During the tenth grade students have an opportunity to explore different occupations through a course entitled, "Industrial Occupational Orientation" and other similar courses in business education and distributive education. These experiences are provided to students to enable them to make wise decisions regarding the selection of specialized programs during eleventh and twelfth grades. With the assistance of the career guidance program, a school objective is to have each student graduate from high school with a job entry skill and/or with adequate preparation to be admitted to an institution for post high school education.

Teachers and counselors strive to develop within students a sense of positive work values and attitudes. Through various activities, such as interviewing people in the community, students define competencies necessary for adjustment to the world of work. Continued effort is needed by students to expand these competencies as a progression in the total educational program. Developing a responsible attitude toward work is essential in this development. Special emphasis is given by counselors, administrators and teachers to promote regular attendance and academic progress by students.

Job Entry/Further Education

In this phase of the program, students are assisted in gaining skills necessary for educational and occupational placement through classroom instruction and individual and group counseling sessions. Skills developed in this manner include:

Applying for a job

Obtaining desirable personal qualifications

Identifying available jobs in community

Understanding the benefits and rewards of a chose career

Accepting the fact that "all honest work is honorable"

To learn basic facts about jobs under consideration, students engage in job searches. Post high school education activities are explored by students interested in further education.

Conclusion

Career guidance is an integral part of the total school. This concept is encouraged and coordinated by involvement of administrators, supervisors, principals and guidance counselors in monthly meetings. From these sessions objectives are determined, strategies outlined and progress evaluated.

During the past two decades the need for career guidance has become critical. Students are required to make important decisions relative to careers and the requirements to be successful in a particular career. Therefore, the career guidance program of Appomattox County School System offers a program to help students develop self-understanding, become knowledgeable of careers, acquire decision making skills, become prepared to enter a chosen career and gain job entry and/or further educational skills.

The time to have that muffler checked is NOW!

Our quick replacement service could be the best investment you've ever made

A faulty muffler is more than a noisy nuisance—it's actually a health hazard for the passengers and driver. In fact, mufflers sometimes leak dangerous fumes before the noise becomes noticeable. Why take chances? Let us inspect your exhaust system now. If a replacement is needed we can handle the job in minutes, probably for a lot less than you'd expect!
